Police commissioner's new internal medicine

Self-policing? Navigating Internal Affairs is a thorny issue. Ramsey's tactic is more boots on the ground.

This year, 17 new investigators were added to the Philadelphia Police Department's Internal Affairs Division. The staffing transfer is intended to improve operations at the division that handles investigations into complaints against officers.

"They were short-staffed, they needed additional personnel," said Commissioner Charles Ramsey of the reasoning behind the move. "It's just for the good of the department. The bottom line is if there's an allegation against an officer, we have an obligation both to the public and the officers accused to have it resolved as quickly and as thoroughly as we can."

Overall, Ramsey said he added 24 investigators, a move that could go toward his record of taking on corruption allegations.

Lawyer Larry Krasner, who represented Askia Sabur, a man who faced assault charges but was seen on video being struck by officers while he was seated on the street, said that while the way police handles integrity issues has changed, he's still skeptical. "It's been dreadful. It's getting better."

"I don't know that putting 24 people in there means anything but 24 people will be clearing the backload — it could be people saying, 'Not sustained, not sustained, not sustained,'" he said. "But the commissioner has shown a real interest in dealing with police integrity issues, and so has the mayor. ... You have dirty cops being taken of the street."

In 2012, Lt. John Josey was investigated and faced criminal charges after viral video spread showing him striking Aida Guzman at the Puerto Rican Day Parade. He was fired, but later reinstated.

Guzman's attorney Enrique Latoison said that his experience filing a complaint about the incident was positive, noting that one officer doubled as a Spanish interpreter.

"They were the ones to initiate contact. I never had to call them or file anything, they came to me," Latoison said. "I have not one negative to say about anything they did, how they treated me or how they treated Aida. They were objective … I thought it was a good process."

Quoted

"We're trying to make sure that we have a unit that's able to handle the workload, and able to complete very thorough investigations."
Ramsey

Checked past?

Public opinion of Internal Affairs and the police department is still charged by historic scandals.

- In the 1990s, former 39th district officer John Baird was sentenced to 13 years by a federal judge for a variety of crimes, including stealing from suspects, assault and planting evidence. He served four-and-a-half years.
- Baird had more than 20 IA complaints on his file when he was indicted in 1995, none sustained.
- "Everyone who said John Baird beat me up, stole money, planted drugs on me, was rejected. It was a straight up cover-up organization. They shut them down because that was what IA did," Krasner said. "That for me is the archetype of how IA used to work."

Bye. Jury: Ex-teacher raped own daughter

A former L.P. Hill Elementary School teacher was convicted Wednesday of forcibly raping his own daughter for eight years.

Sumo Dukulah was arrested in April 2013 after his daughter accused her father of sexual abuse, according to District Attorney Seth Williams.

"The evidence showed that the victim's mother found out about the abuse years before," according to a news release, "but sided with her husband and told her daughter not to tell anyone about the abuse because it would bring shame onto the family."

The abuse continued until the girl came forward last year.

Dukulah faces a mandatory minimum of 10 to 20 years in prison, and a maximum of 64 to 128 years of incarceration. He is scheduled for sentencing on Aug. 29. METRO

The officer shot the dog, which was pronounced dead on the scene. METRO

Slinging ink. Four charged with assault in forcible tattooing

Police have charged four people with reportedly forcibly tattooing a Mayfair man against his will, allegedly using a tattoo gun to permanently pen obscene words and images on his arms.

Three of the suspects reportedly were housemates of the victim, who resided on the 3100 block of Brighton Street.

Corry (also known as Corey) Campbell, 20; Sandra Ng, 19; Jennifer Pratt, 29; and David Thomas, 27, are all charged with aggravated assault, kidnapping, theft and more, police said.

The victim reportedly escaped after his alleged captors fell asleep Tuesday morning.

The man told officials he had been assaulted and tattooed against his will by three individuals while being held captive at his Brighton Street residence, where he resided with the defendants.

Police observed that the 52-year-old man had tattoos with inappropriate racial and sexual terms and images, severely bruised and swollen hands, bruised eyes, ribs, legs and torso.

Police officers and the man returned to the home and the suspects were taken in.

School leaders want tax extension for funding

Charter school leaders on Thursday will call upon City Council members to approve the 1 percent sales tax extension to provide funding for Philadelphia public schools.

The extension could mean upward of $120 million in annual, sustainable funding, according to school officials.

Without funding, they have said, there will be more reductions in school services.

Charter schools receive less funding per student.

The leaders are following last week's call for funding by district-run principals. Charter school leaders will gather Thursday at 1 p.m. at City Hall to make the announcement. METRO

Cop charged for making violent threat to walker

Arrested. Officer Edward Sawicki was charged with making terroristic threats to a pedestrian.

A Philadelphia Police officer was arrested and charged on Wednesday after he threatened to kill a pedestrian after an altercation in October 2013, authorities said.

Edward Sawicki III, 34, was off-duty on Oct. 20, 2013 around 3 a.m. when he backed his car into a 37-year-old pedestrian on the 1100 block of S. Ninth Street.

Sawicki hit the man in the knee. The victim then pounded on the trunk of Sawicki's vehicle with his hand to alert the driver, according to the District Attorney's Office.

Sawicki exited the car, pulled up his shirt and showed his gun. He then rushed at the victim. Sawicki then yelled racial epitaphs at the victim and threatened to kill him.

At one point, Sawicki stated "N—, I'll smoke you" while keeping his hand on the holstered, city-issued gun, according to the DA's office.

Sawicki, who is a nine-year veteran of the department, was last assigned to the 25th District.

Shooting at Ft. Hood Army base in Texas

Another tragedy. In 2009, a former Army psychiatrist shot dead 13 people at the base.

A gunman opened fire at Fort Hood on Wednesday, killing multiple people and injuring a dozen or more at the U.S. Army base in central Texas that was the scene of another deadly shooting rampage in 2009, officials said.

The shooter, a male soldier, was dead of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, according to Rep. Michael McCaul of Texas in an interview with CNN. He said four people, including the gunman, were dead.

"There has been a shooting at Fort Hood and injuries are reported. Emergency crews are on the scene. No further details are known at this time," the base said in a statement.

Local news reports initially said there may have been two suspected shooters.

News of the shooting, the third such incident at a military base in the United States in about six months, was relayed to President Barack Obama, the White House said.

"We are going to get to the bottom of exactly what happened," Obama told reporters in Chicago, where he is attending fundraisers. "We're heartbroken that something like this might have happened again."

The base has been put on lockdown and police were securing its perimeter, police and military officials said. Helicopters could be seen circling the base in live TV footage broadcast from the scene.

Authorities advised those on the post to stay away from windows and to keep doors closed and locked via an update on Twitter.

In September, a gunman opened fire at the Washington Navy Yard, killing 12 and wounding four before being slain by police.

Last month, a civilian shot dead a sailor aboard a ship at a U.S. Navy base in Norfolk, Va. REUTERS

Security. Data breaches on the rise as federal agencies struggle

Federal agencies have a spotty record of handling data breaches, which can include the theft of sensitive information like Social Security numbers, financial data and health history, the investigative arm of Congress said in a report issued Wednesday.

The number of such incidents involving personal data more than doubled in 2013, to 25,566 from 10,481 in 2009, according to the Government Accountability Office.

Incidents from the highly publicized theft in 2006 of a laptop and external hard drive belonging to the Department of Veterans Affairs that contained personal data on 26.5 million veterans and active duty military, to the hacking of a Federal Aviation Administration computer with data of 45,000 employees and retirees. A White House-backed bill to renew expired jobless benefits for 2.2 million Americans cleared a final Republican procedural hurdle on Wednesday in the Democratic-led Senate.

Report about CIA 'torture' should be public: Senators

Declassification. The committee will ask the president to take steps.

Two members of the Senate Intelligence Committee came out on Wednesday in favor of declassifying parts of a report on the CIA's use of "enhanced interrogation" methods, saying they had concluded some detainees "were subjected to techniques that constituted torture."

The announcement by Maine Sens. Susan Collins, a Republican, and Angus King, an Independent aligned with the Democrats, was an important boost for the declassification push a day before the panel is expected to vote on the issue.

The committee had been expected to recommend the declassification of the "Findings & Conclusions" and Executive Summary from the 6,000-page report. Bipartisan support could increase the likelihood that the material will become available.

A congressional aide said the Senate panel will ask the White House — not the CIA — to declassify the politically sensitive report. President Barack Obama has said he wants to see a version of the report made public. "The president is the head of the Executive Branch and, under executive order, is the ultimate decision-making authority on declassification," said the aide. REUTERS

"This inhumane and brutal treatment never should have occurred."

Search for jet drags on as probe narrows to crew

Malaysian police have ruled out the involvement of any passengers in the disappearance of a jetliner, while Australian officials warned bad weather and a lack of reliable information were impeding efforts to find the plane's wreckage.

Up to 10 planes and nine ships from a half dozen countries on Wednesday scoured a stretch of the Indian Ocean roughly the size of Britain, where Flight MH370 is believed to have crashed more than three weeks ago.

Authorities have not ruled out mechanical problems as a cause of the disappearance, but say all the evidence suggests the plane was deliberately diverted from its scheduled route from Kuala Lumpur to Beijing. REUTERS

Russia could bring Ukraine incursion in 3-5 days

Russia has massed all the forces it needs on Ukraine's border if it were to decide to make an "incursion" into the country, and it could achieve its objective in three to five days, NATO's top military commander said on Wednesday.

Calling the situation "incredibly concerning," U.S. Air Force Gen. Philip Breedlove said NATO had spotted signs of movement by a very small part of the Russian force overnight but had no indication that this was part of a withdrawal to barracks.

NATO military chiefs are concerned that the estimated 40,000 Russian soldiers massed on the Ukrainian border could pose a threat to eastern and southern Ukraine.

Competition. Amazon makes $99 Fire TV set-top box to rival Apple

Amazon.com Inc. unveiled a $99 video streaming device called Fire TV that the e-commerce company promised would be more powerful and easier to use than rival services by Apple Inc., Google Inc. and Roku.

Amazon is a latecomer to the set-top TV market that is dominated by the Apple TV. Amazon customers have a large appetite for film and TV, but many already own similar devices, analysts said.

Fire TV, which is available on Amazon.com, can access Netflix, Hulu and other providers of streaming video content. It also provides a more prominent showcase for Amazon Prime Video as well as its growing slate of original television shows and video games from Amazon Studios.

What you get

Fire TV can predict what the user will watch and cue it up instantly, Larsen said.

- A microphone in the remote enables voice-activated search. A video game controller can be purchased for $39.99.

"It's the easiest place to watch Netflix," Amazon executive Peter Larsen said at an event in New York on Wednesday to launch the product. "You can watch 'Alpha House' and you can watch 'House of Cards.'" Amazon said it developed the device after getting feedback on its site from customers who bought other boxes. REUTERS

It's no secret that the singer/celebrity spawn has had plastic surgery. But it's just so jarring how absolutely not like her old self she looks. DOROTHY ROBINSON

Real talk: Someone needs to help Zac Efron super fast before we all relive what happened to Cory Monteith.

Last November, Efron allegedly "slipped on a puddle of water" which was "in his home" and broke his jaw so badly it had to be wired shut.

Shady as hell? Yes. And now an insider has told In Touch Weekly what we've assumed all along: that he hurt himself doing the bad stuff. "He does drugs alone," the inside source exclusively tells the magazine. "It's sad."

A second insider tells In Touch: "He needs to get help before it's too late."

And people, the time is ticking down to "too late." As we reported last week, Efron had another shady as hell altercation recently with his "bodyguard" and some homeless men after Efron's car "ran out of gas" near Skid Row in Los Angeles.

For some unknown reason, Efron "threw a bottle out of the car," which scared some homeless people milling around. Tensions between the group and Efron's camp escalated, with the "High School Musical" star reportedly taking a punch to the mouth.

Right. That sounds exactly like something that would happen to anybody anywhere and not a drug deal gone bad. Exactly.

Talking points

Lohan is broke

Despite Lindsay Lohan's $2 million payday for her Oprah Winfrey-produced reality series, the starlet is reportedly flat broke again. "After Lindsay's manager, agent, publicist [and taxes] were paid, she was left with $750,000." Which for most people would be great, but Lohan is not most people. Evidence of her money woes popped up over the weekend when two of Lohan's credit cards were reportedly declined when she attempted to pay for $300 worth of merchandise at a SoHo boutique, according to Page Six. "She looked really embarrassed and tried to negotiate before her friend finally stepped in and paid," a source says.

Cuoco-Sweeting is reading what you write

Watch what you say about "Big Bang Theory" star Kaley Cuoco-Sweeting online, because she's probably reading it. "I'm obsessed. I openly admit to being totally insane about that," she tells Cosmopolitan magazine. "I started reading [the comments] and thought, 'Maybe I need to make more of an effort and not go out in my UGGs and be disgusting.' So I started putting on makeup, and they started writing, 'Wow, someone really likes being in front of the camera' and 'Her hair's done now for coffee.' I couldn't do anything right."

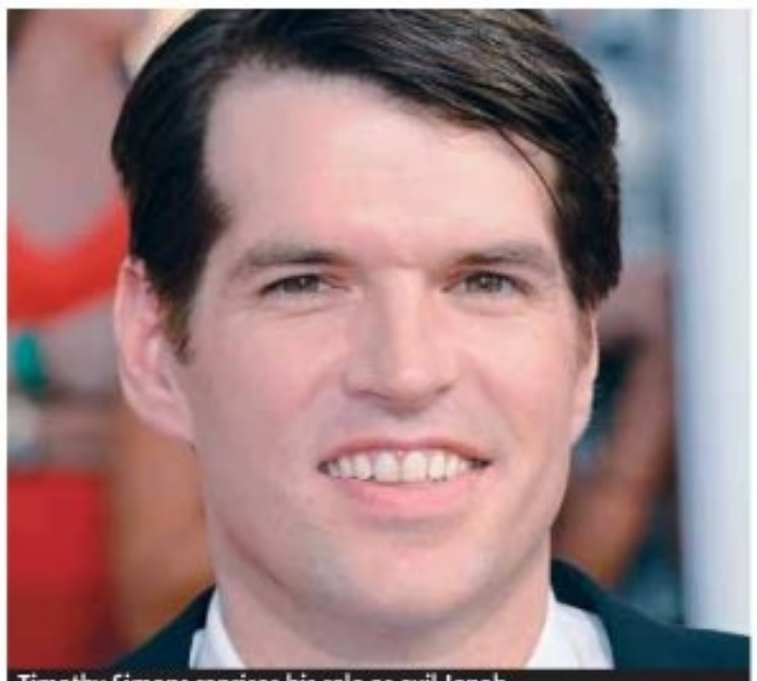
Not really a creep

Interview. Timothy Simons is a lot nicer than Jonah, his hilariously loathsome character on "Veep."



Timothy Simons reprises his role as evil Jonah in the third season of "Veep." / GETTY IMAGES

On "Veep," HBO's hyper-profane government comedy, returning Sunday, no one on the show much likes anyone else. But everyone hates Jonah, the West Wing stooge. In real life, Timothy Simons, who plays him, is friendly and polite and soon to appear in "Draft Day" and P.T. Anderson's "Inherent Vice."

We won't reveal what happens to Jonah at the start of this new season, but it's pretty shocking.
One thing I really like about Armando [Iannucci, the show's creator] is he likes shaking things up. If it was another year of just Jonah coming in from the West Wing and saying something stupid as he walks through the door, then maybe people would get tired of it.

A lot of the insults the writers come up with involve your height.
It is a little bit strange seeing insults tailor-made for you. I'm sort of an odd-looking guy. Every once in awhile there will be an insult about how I'm odd-looking. In my brain, I'll be like, "Oh, that's a really great insult to Jonah," without realizing it's me. Jonah's face is my face. They are making fun of my face. But they're just too funny to ever take as personal insult.

Prep time

What kind of research did you do?
When we were shooting the pilot we took a big cast trip up to D.C. We were given a tour and we did a lunch with some consultants and lobbyists. A few of us would take the staffers out for drinks. We'd get them drunk and get them to tell the bad s— about their jobs.

Did you base Jonah on anyone?
I've never met a Jonah, because in those situations when we'd go out for drinks, you're never going to invite a Jonah, because you know he'd ruin it. No one would ever admit to being a Jonah. A Jonah would say he was a Dan [the more dashing staffer, played by Reid Scott]. I've had to piece him together from ideas and stories of bad behavior. I've never actually seen one up close.

Interview. "Game of Thrones" star Isaac Hempstead-Wright has an important role to play in this cold landscape.

While the rest of Westeros continues to bribe, kill and manipulate their way to the Iron Throne, Isaac Hempstead-Wright's Bran Stark is inching closer to his destiny.

The fourth season of HBO's "Game of Thrones" finds him deep in the North beyond the Wall, searching for answers about his strange new powers. Hempstead-Wright, 14, sat down with Metro after the show's NYC premiere to reveal what's in store for Bran, his pragmatic take on the battle between good and evil, and the television show he can't wait to see return.

Where does Bran start out in Season 4?
This season is Bran exploring his mystical side even more, because in Season 3 we had definite hints of him starting to understand his powers, especially with the introduction of Jojen Reed [Thomas Brodie-Sangster], who is a mentor to Bran, teaching him what his power is and what he can use it for. And in Season 4, not only is he getting taught more by Jojen, but there is this kind of supernatural force that's pulling him somewhere.

Bran has some powerful abilities: His dreams are prophetic, and he can control animals. Is he excited about them, or is he apprehensive?
In Season 3, when he takes control of [his guardian giant] Hodor, it's a definite sort of, "Whoa, is that acceptable?" Taking control of another human being is a big thing for Bran, and a huge responsibility bestowed upon him to actually use it for good and not evil, and not turn into Joffrey with it. But also, he loves it, because he can finally walk and run and be the kid he used to be again, albeit through another sort of body, but it's both super exciting and quite scary for him.

How far will his powers grow — could he maybe control a dragon?
That would be cool! I mean, that would be seriously cool. I'll slip a note to George [R.R. Martin, the series creator].

The good guys don't tend to win a lot on this show. Does it wear on you to keep seeing the bad guys win?
I suppose constantly having your family slaughtered and bad constantly triumphing over good is a bit of a shame. But it does make it a lot more real, in the sense that it's not this sort of happy, clappy kind of thing. It's more blunt and realistic because in life, the good guys don't usually win, or seldom do.

Do you watch any TV shows?
I do: "Sherlock," "Modern Family," "The Simpsons," "SpongeBob [SquarePants]." I'm just so annoyed there's going to be another year's wait for Season 4 [of "Sherlock"].

Two years.
[Showrunner Steven Moffat] said he was gonna try to get it out more quickly!

Apparently you can't rush greatness.
Ugh, 2016. We need to have words with the BBC. We film 10 hours of stuff within a year, and it takes them two years to make four and a half.

The fourth season of "Game of Thrones" begins Sunday at 9 p.m. on HBO.

Keep the 'Game' going

Want to take your love of "Game of Thrones" beyond the show? HBO has you covered no matter your age, from talismans featuring the house sigils of Westeros' most powerful families, by Canadian jeweler Pyrrha, to action figures of the miniature kind from Funko, as well as Dark Horse's intricately crafted statues. (Both companies are releasing new characters for Season 4.) If you're old enough to enjoy some grog, Ommegang's Fire & Blood Red Ale celebrates Daenerys Targaryen with this slightly floral hoppy brew made with ancho chiles.

But it's Insight Editions' grown-up take on a children's classic that will impress anyone who comes across it on your coffee table. "Game of Thrones: A Pop-Up Guide to Westeros" brings the show's Emmy-winning credits to life with astonishingly intricate 3-D models of five key locations from the series.

What you'll see

'Captain America: The Winter Soldier'

1 Last seen not quite saving New York City from leveling, the unfrozen WWII warrior gets his second solo record, this time going on the lam and squaring off against a mysterious dude with a metal arm.

In "The Winter Soldier," Captain America (Chris Evans) gets to meet Robert Redford. / ZADE ROSENTHAL

2 'Nymphomaniac: Volume II'
Did you actually have a fun, funny time with Lars Von Trier's first sexaholic romp? Well, this one gets darker, with sadomasochism and other unpleasantries. But Stellan Skarsgard's bookworm listener still offers delightfully bizarre digressions.

3 'The Missing Picture'
A nominee for this year's Foreign Language Film Oscar, Rithy Panh's semi-doc takes an unusual and haunting look at the Khmer Rouge, depicting life in the death camps with clay figures in increasingly harrowing dioramas.

4 'Rob the Mob'
Director Raymond De Felitta's follow-up to "City Island" is another New York story, this one based on truth, about a Queens couple (Michael Pitt and Nina Arianda) who started sticking up mob hang-outs during the John Gotti trial.

5 'On My Way'
Catherine Deneuve is in this picture. That's all you need to know. (OK, it's a drama in which she plays a restaurant owner who whimsically leaves her life behind to start anew.)

6 'Noah'
Good news, Christians! There's a big budget movie about the epic flood, in which God wiped out everyone but one family and a bunch of animals. Less good news: It's by Darren Aronofsky, the stylist of the keyed-up "Black Swan" and has been plagued by bad press.

7 'Sabotage'
Arnold Schwarzenegger's post-governorship film comeback hasn't been going too well, but we're mildly pumped that he's in a loose — very, very loose — take on "And Then There Were None," made by David Ayer ("End of Watch").

8 'Le Week-End'
Jim Broadbent and Lesley Duncan play an unhappy couple who spend their 30th anniversary in Montmartre in an attempt to rekindle their marriage.

CANDICE SWANEPOEL

She doesn't need that $10 million Victoria's Secret bra to feel sexy.

'GOING COMMANDO ALWAYS WORKS'

In addition to Candice Swanepoel's career on the catwalk circuit, you'll recognize her as the girl who wowed the world in the $10 million Fantasy Bra at the Victoria's Secret show. We caught up with Swanepoel and chatted about feeling sexy — from the inside out.

Romance

You've been dating Brazilian model Hermann Nicoli for a few years now. Was it love at first sight?
It was kind of love or desire at first sight. I was living between Milan, London and Paris and I met him at a party in Milan very briefly. Then I was in Paris a year later during men's fashion week, when I was staying in a little apartment hotel in Paris, and we met in the lobby, and that's where we hit it off.

Did he approach you?
We both have different stories, but I kind of approached him, that's the funny thing. I had just come out of a relationship that wasn't working and pretty soon after that I met him ... and the rest is history.

You've spent a lot of time being photographed in lingerie. Am I right in thinking that this is how you hang out at home?
Um, no. I must admit that I have a great collection of lingerie, but at home I try to find the most comfortable thing to wear.

So, Bridget Jones-style granny panties?
No, no, no, definitely not. You can find comfy lingerie like boy shorts, briefs — and commando always works!

Always nice to be naked. You're a ballet dancer, so do you like expressing your sexuality through dance?
Yeah. Growing up doing ballet makes you a lot more aware of how to move your body. Dance is a big part of the way we communicate with people, the way we feel about ourselves. When you're out and dancing you're showing people a part of yourself.

You've said that blondes have more fun. What do you mean by that?
The difference between brunettes and blondes is that you notice a blonde first when she walks into a room. I was more serious as a brunette. It's easier to have that cute, naughty, playful attitude as a blonde.

So going blonde has changed your attitude?
I'm used to playing a different role for work. Hair color is like fragrance or lingerie: It brings something different out of you.

Role play

Should lingerie create a fantasy?

Yeah. There are so many different styles that all play a different role: Body by Victoria's Secret is very relaxed and there's a sexy line that's playful with color, garter belts and babydolls. Then there's the more cutesy stuff with lace and frills.

Which is your favorite style and why?

I do tend to stick to the more sultry black lace, garter belts and subtle styles.

Different strokes

'Don't yuck my yum!'

Sex educators use this phrase as a reminder that sexual practices are diverse. What you think is disgusting others might think is delicious. Maybe sploshing (eating food off another person) is your thing — or you have to take to Google to know what it means. In either case, apply this philosophy online. If you find someone who's not quite what you're looking for, move on. But remember, it could be your loss or theirs. Whatever you decide, don't judge them. You, too, are someone else's castoff.

ONLINE DATING DOESN'T HAVE TO BE THE WORST

Funky Brown Chick

No one likes rejection. If you are single, you may want to meet people to hang out, kiss, have casual sex or to otherwise get romantically involved. It can be frustrating if you don't get enough replies — or worse yet: responses that make you wish you could grab a can of Raid to get rid of the creeps. Fret not. Better online dates are within your reach.

According to Pew Research Internet Project, 38 percent of people who are currently "single and looking" have used online dating sites or mobile hookup apps and more than 23 percent of online daters said they clicked or swiped to find their current spouse or long-term partner. With numbers like these, finding your right mate is just a matter of time. Be patient.

Whichever site you look for love and lust on, these tips will help you write a profile that makes people notice.

The best online dating technique is to start with an open mind. / PHOTODISC

- DO focus on what you want, not what you don't want. Instead of saying "don't bother writing me if [fill in the blank]," explain who should write you, what you are looking for and what kinds of fun you want to have with potential partners.
- DON'T limit yourself. Online dating offers a wonderful opportunity to explore new territory. Go younger or older, ethnically darker or lighter. Cast your net a mile (or 5!) farther than your current commute takes you.
- DON'T be boring. Write more than one-sentence openers like "What's up?" or "Your hot!" (sic.) Use correct grammar and spelling. Be the same multifaceted, engaging human being online that you are offline.

Where to brunch this weekend

Here's to "lunkfast"! No? OK, fine, we'll stick with "brunch" — and we'll eat it at these spots.

Mt. Airy Brunch Sessions

April 5 and 6

"Brunch sessions" makes us think we'd better show up with an empty stomach and full appetite. This Saturday and Sunday, eight Mt. Airy restaurants — Avenida, Earth Bread + Brewery, Geechee Girl Rice Cafe, Goat Hollow, Jyoti Indian Bistro, Little Jimmie's Bakery Cafe, Wine Thief Bistro and Trolley Car Diner — are offering elaborate brunches with starters, entrees, sides and coffee or tea for just $16. We're debating between the decadent-sounding bread pudding French toast at Geechee Girl (6825 Germantown Ave.), the corned beef hash flatbread with roasted onions and fried egg at Earth Bread + Brewery (7136 Germantown Ave.) or the traditional kicharee stew at Jyoti (7220 Germantown Ave.). A few of the spots are open Saturday or Sunday, not both, so check the website before you head over.

City Tap House

April 6
3925 Walnut St.
215-662-0105
Kick off the "Game of Thrones" season with Brunch of Thrones at City Tap House. All three Ommegang "GOT"-inspired beers will be poured alongside dishes designed with the TV show in mind. If you make a reservation, you'll get an Ommegang "GOT" glass to take home. Special dishes include the Flea Bottom Bowl of Brown, a country-fried steak with brown gravy, potato hash with fried egg and Arya's Lemon Cakes, which are lemon pancakes with berry compote and honey-thyme butter. For $15, get a beer flight plus an extra Ommegang brew of your choice. Come thirsty.

Now that Jose Garces has a list of acclaimed local restaurants, plus spots in Atlantic City and, of course, the much-buzzed-about Volver opening in the Kimmel Center April 16, can we mention him without the "he's an Iron Chef" introduction? Discuss that among yourselves over the new brunch offerings at Garces Trading Company, served on Saturdays and Sundays. For $22, get coffee or tea, a basket of housemade pastries and two courses. Life after 'Top Chef'

Hot Chef. Nick Elmi of East Passyunk's Laurel tells us how he kept his win a secret for months.

Nick Elmi ruled the "Top Chef" kitchen. / DAVID MOIR, BRAVO

The most recent "Top Chef" winner has a full plate. As expected, Nick Elmi's win brought an onslaught of interview and collaboration requests. And then, not long after the airing of the season finale, Elmi's restaurant, Laurel (at 1617 E. Passyunk Ave.), was nominated for a James Beard award.

He carved out a little time to speak with us after the win and the James Beard announcement — but before East Passyunk's big Flavors of the Avenue celebration this month.

Are you glad it's all over and the secret is out and you can get back to work?
Yeah, certainly. I'm moving forward and able to focus on the restaurant. I think we've done a good job so far.

Besides the obvious fame and fortune, how has "Top Chef" changed your life in a way that outsiders may not notice?
That remains to be seen. For me, the finale was [taped] in October. So I just kept my head down at work for the past four months, which is still my focus. Now I have to do more interviews. [Laughs]

Quoted

"It's pretty easy: I turn my phone off at noon every day."
Elmi, on handling all the attention

How do you keep yourself grounded?
It's pretty easy: I turn my phone off at noon every day. I try to do interviews and stuff in the morning. It's the easiest way to just focus on the restaurant.

Do you have a favorite ingredient to work with right now?
This is a strange time of year; everyone's hoping to use spring ingredients soon. I like switching up different root vegetables.

Where can we find you on your day off?
I took the kids ice skating recently. The restaurant is closed on Sunday and Monday. The rule at work is don't call me, and I won't call you.

JULIA WEST
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

Shhhh

Apparently "Top Chef" contestants can only tell their spouses and lawyers the end result of the show. How did you manage to keep such a big secret?
It sucks, because everyone you meet wants to know who won. I always tried to keep it light and funny. I would tell people to just keep watching the show. But once you see the size of the "Top Chef" contract, you keep your mouth shut.

LEAVE NICK ELMI ALONE! (BUT EAT AT LAUREL.) / JUSTIN STEPHENS, BRAVO

Americans want care, not highway robbery

Re: 'We need care, not insurance' (Metro, April 2) Maria Termini hit the nail on the head. We need a system where insurance companies don't siphon off 20 percent of the money we spend on health care — and then have the nerve to complain because it's not their normal 30 percent. And they probably get to deduct their lobbying efforts from the base cost while making life miserable for sick people. They should be restricted to making money off people who can afford to give it away. Sell them those Cadillac policies. Expanding Medicare is one way to go. Maria is right: We need health care, not insurance. JOHN LASELL, VIA EMAIL

Letter writer Maria Termini is so correct, the high cost associated with today's health insurance still makes it unaffordable for most people. I don't care how low the premium is, should you have a procedure done, your co-pay and deductible will be as much as $600. So people who could not afford insurance before, because it cost too much, will be upset when they find out that if you want to use it, it will cost more in co-pays than your premium every month. KATHY HAROLD, VIA EMAIL

5 Players who came back to haunt Eagles

DeSean Jackson confirmed the greatest fears of Eagles fans everywhere late Tuesday night, when perhaps the best wide receiver in team history signed a three-year, $24 million deal with the Redskins, with $16 million guaranteed.

Forget that Jackson was the reason for his own demise, complaining about the $10.5 million he was due in 2014, claiming he was the victim of a bizarre robbery and distracting the team with his countless extracurricular activities, gang ties or no. He was a lightning rod, a one-man game changer — and now he will return to Lincoln Financial Field adorned in burgundy and gold.

He won't be wearing No. 10 anymore, however — unless he makes Robert Griffin III an offer he can't refuse.

Jackson is hardly the first Eagles superstar to return to Philadelphia as an enemy of the state. Here are five guys who did not have a very happy return to the City of Brotherly Love.

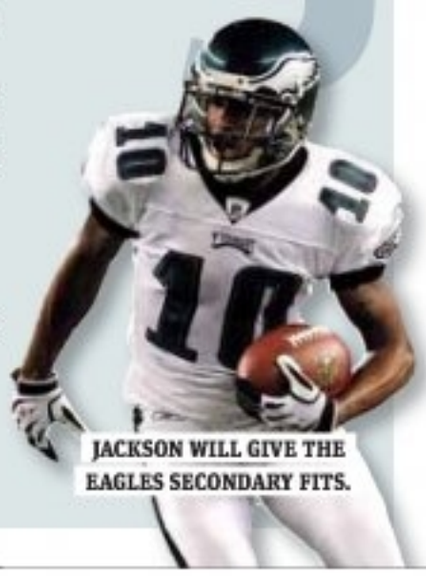
5 DeSean Jackson

Jackson's return will surely include a myriad of boos and insults from the Eagles faithful, but his signing with the Redskins suddenly gives them some pretty scary weapons with which Robert Griffin III can attack the NFC East.

"Very exciting player. Determined to show he is the best and hungry to win. My kinda guy," Griffin told ESPN.

The Redskins seemed destined to land the Pro Bowl receiver when he went to visit the team Monday and was still in Washington on Tuesday.



JACKSON WILL GIVE THE EAGLES SECONDARY FITS.

4 Sonny Jurgensen

Sonny Jurgensen / GETTY IMAGES

The backup quarterback (behind Norm Van Brocklin) for the 1960 NFL Championship squad, Jurgensen would set an NFL record with 3,723 yards, tying the NFL record with 32 touchdown passes, as a starter in 1961.

After injuries shortened his 1963 season, the Eagles traded him to the Redskins for Sam Snead and Claude Crabb.

Jurgensen had an 8-2 career record in Philadelphia against the Eagles, winning six straight games in Philly as a Redskin from 1968-1974.

3 Chris Carter

CARTER HAD A HALL OF FAME CAREER IN MINNESOTA.

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Eagles fans can only hope the Jackson debacle doesn't end up like Chris Carter back in 1989. Buddy Ryan decided to let the receiver walk after problems abusing alcohol and drugs got in the way of his on-field performance.

Carter got a second chance with the Minnesota Vikings and the rest is history.

Carter caught 19 touchdown passes in three season with the Eagles, and then 110 in 10 seasons in Minnesota.

In his first trip back to Veterans Stadium as a Viking in 1990, Carter caught six passes for 151 yards and two touchdowns. But the Eagles held on to win 32-24.

2 Reggie White

The Eagles' all-time sack leader (124) is arguably the best player in the history of the team.

White left the Eagles for the Packers as a free agent in 1993, where he went on to set that franchise's sack record as well. White won two Super Bowls in Green Bay and a Defensive Player of the Year award in 1998, and was a Pro Bowler every season from 1985-98. He returned to Veterans Stadium only once, in 1997, for a 10-9 Eagles victory.

WHITE HAD A HALL OF FAME CAREER, BREAKING RECORDS IN PHILLY AND GREEN BAY.

Jeremiah Trotter

Perhaps the Eagles' best run stopper during the decade they played best, the 2000s, Trotter left the Birds for the Redskins for two seasons in 2002 and 2003, collecting 91 and 113 tackles respectively. He returned to the Eagles for a second stint starting in 2004, when he helped the defense make a run to the Super Bowl.

NHL power rankings | by Rich Slate

No. 1

Bruins (52-17-6)

The numbers all back it up: Boston is currently the top team in the NHL. The Bruins went 15-1-1 in March and have a league-best 110 points (one more than St. Louis). Boston also has the best goal-differential (plus-83) with seven games left to play in the regular season.

No. 2

Blues (51-17-7)

The Blues aren't being penalized for playing poorly — they are 7-3-0 in their last 10 games. It's more about the Bruins being on fire as of late.

No. 3

Ducks (49-18-8)

Regular season wins don't get much sweeter than Anaheim's epic 5-4 overtime comeback victory over Winnipeg on Monday.

No. 4

Sharks (48-20-9)

The Sharks are only one point behind the Ducks, but Anaheim has two games in hand over their California rivals. San Jose hosts Los Angeles on Thursday.

No. 5

Avalanche (48-21-6)

Matt Duchene is out at least for the first round of the playoffs for Colorado, which is bad news for a team getting its first playoff berth since 2010.

No. 6

Penguins (48-23-5)

The Pens are not going to get the No. 1 seed. The good news is that they likely wouldn't see Boston until the Eastern Conference finals.

No. 7

'Hawks (42-19-15)

The rigors of a Cup run, plus an Olympic year, mean it is going to be difficult for Chicago to recapture the same magic from last season.

No. 8

Kings (44-26-6)

Nothing illustrates the depth and quality of the West more than the fact that the Kings will most likely be the No. 6 seed. L.A. is the team no one wants to face this spring.

No. 9

Lightning (45-25-9)

The Lightning are playing great again, having gone 7-1-2 in their last 10 games. They'll likely be either the No. 3 or No. 4 seed.

No. 10

Canadiens (43-27-7)

The Canadiens only have five games left but are in good shape for home ice in the first round. They have Ottawa and Detroit on the slate this week.

Flyers face Jackets in key game

NHL. Every game has playoff implications as the Flyers begin a sprint to the finish.

Coming off a strong performance against Western Conference powerhouse St. Louis, the Flyers are one step closer to clinching a playoff spot with 87 points.

Ray Emery earned Craig Berube's squad a valuable point in his best game of the season, turning aside all 28 shots in regulation and overtime before St. Louis ultimately prevailed in a shootout.

The point lowered the "magic number" to assure a postseason berth down to six. Any combination of points they get over their remaining seven games coupled with points Toronto (82), Washington (81) and the Devils (80) don't get will clinch a chance to vie for Lord Stanley's Cup.

Of course, the Flyers want to do more than just qualify for the competition. They'd prefer going in with momentum, especially if it earns them home-ice advantage in the first round. They can go a long way toward that goal if they beat the Blue Jackets Thursday night.

The Flyers play four of their last seven on the road. / GETTY IMAGES

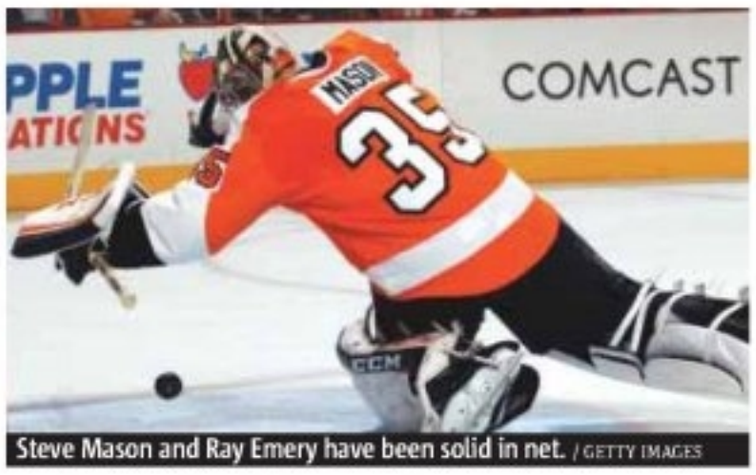
NHL. Goaltending key for Flyers with just seven games left



Steve Mason and Ray Emery have been solid in net. / GETTY IMAGES

The biggest subplot for the Flyers as they face the Blue Jackets Thursday night, looking to inch closer to a playoff berth is goaltending.

Former Flyer Sergei Bobrovsky missed the first two games against his old team due to an injury, then turned aside 26 shots in a Jan. 23 5-2 win.

Steve Mason, who broke in with Columbus, the place where he won the Calder Trophy as Rookie of the Year in 2009, wasn't as sharp in his one appearance.

That was the game where the Flyers rallied from 3-0 and 4-2 down to steal a 5-4 decision with Claude Giroux scoring the game winner on a remarkable blind backhander with 1:38 left.

Flyers coach Craig Berube is likely to turn back to Mason (after a Ray Emery shut out Tuesday) Thursday night and again Saturday in Boston. Emery could play at home Sunday vs. Buffalo before the Flyers head to Florida for games against the Panthers and Lightning.

They wrap up the regular season next weekend at Pittsburgh, then host Carolina.

"We know it's gonna be tough like this going down the stretch, so we've got to keep plugging away," said defenseman Nicklas Grossmann, who'll likely welcome back Kimmo Timonen on the blue line, after Timonen took a puck to the chin against the Bruins and stayed home Tuesday. "We've still got a lot of work to do here, so we can't take a night off."

After running a gauntlet that's included the Penguins twice, Blues twice, Bruins twice, Blackhawks, Kings and Rangers, even though the schedule may soften a bit down the stretch the Flyers don't want to ease off the throttle.

If the Flyers, who hold two crucial games in hand, hope to make up the three point gap between them and the Rangers and also eliminate the Blue Jackets, they need this one.

"Down the stretch we've been doing a great job, but we've got to keep going," said Berube, now 39-24-9 since replacing Peter Laviolette. "This one's big because it's in the division and they're right there. But they're all big."

And only continue to get bigger as the season draws to a close. JON MARKS

NFL news

The Broncos made zero effort to re-sign Knowshon Moreno, who ended up settling for a one-year, $3 million deal from Miami. It speaks volumes about their faith in Montee Ball. Ball is now penciled in as a strong candidate for 300 touches and all the goal-line work in a Peyton Manning offense that turns average backs into statistical monsters.

MR. JACKSON GOES TO WASHINGTON

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN
METRO'S FANTASY GURU BREAKS IT ALL DOWN.

DeSean Jackson may or may not be a gangster. But he's certainly a dynamic football player.

Since 2008, Jackson has led the NFL in receptions of at least 40 yards and is third in yards per reception. Last season, he was ninth in receiving yards (1,332), 19th in catches (82) and 14th in touchdowns (nine).

Up and down

Robert Griffin III was already going to be a monster bounce-back candidate thanks to the healing of his knee and the arrival of pass-happy head coach Jay Gruden. Now he has top-5 QB upside because of Jackson's ability to stretch defenses. It will open up the middle of the field for Pierre Garcon and Jordan Reed, two dynamic playmakers in their own right. Meanwhile, Eagles QB Nick Foles' stock sinks as he has two major question marks in Riley Cooper (ability) and Jeremy Maclin (health).

The man himself

It would be a shock if Jackson is able to duplicate his 2013 numbers in his first season with the Redskins. Garcon led the NFL in targets last season with a whopping 184, firmly establishing himself as Griffin's go-to guy. New offensive coordinator Sean McVay reportedly "loves" Reed as his move tight end, as he should. It's going to leave Jackson hovering around 1,000 yards, not up at the 1,300 mark.

Jackson's addition to the Redskins makes their offense very formidable. / GETTY IMAGES

The Sproles effect

Some of Jackson's best work last season came out of the slot and on bubble plays. Now we know why Chip Kelly pulled off the surprising trade for Darren Sproles. Although Sproles doesn't have Jackson's long speed, he does bring the short-area quicks and explosive ability on short screens and slants. The other beneficiary in Philly is talented Zach Ertz, an athletic tight end who now rises up the target totem pole. Expect a breakout season of 70-plus catches.

Metro does not endorse the opinions of the author.

NBA pickups

Time to scour the waiver wire for these players:

- Matt Barnes, SF, Clippers — Both Blake Griffin and Jamal Crawford are banged up, giving Barnes the green light.
- Omer Asik, C, Rockets — This guy is a double-double waiting to happen anytime Dwight Howard (ankle) sits. And Howard has been doing a lot of resting in the last few weeks.
- Chris Kaman, C, Lakers — At long last, head coach Mike D'Antoni — just as he may be on his way out of Los Angeles — is playing Kaman and Pau Gasol together in the starting lineup.

†INTEREST CHARGES accrue on the promotional balance from the transaction date and all accrued INTEREST CHARGES for the entire promotional period will be added to your account if the promotional balance is not paid in full by the end of the promotional period or if you fail to make a required payment on your account when due. Minimum monthly payments of the greater of $25.00 or 3.25% of your promotional balance (which calculation is rounded up to the nearest dollar) are required plus any minimum payment otherwise due. Making the minimum monthly payment will not pay off your promotional balance in time to avoid INTEREST CHARGES. See below for details.††

††NO INTEREST FOR TWO YEARS IF PAID IN FULL BY PROMOTION EXPIRATION DATE. Requires a minimum purchase of $1500 in the fine jewelry department charged to your Macy's Card. Subject to credit approval. INTEREST CHARGE will be determined by applying an ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE ("APR") of up to 26.99% (but if your account has a variable APR, a variable APR of 24.50% as of April 2014) to the account's Average Daily Balance with a minimum monthly INTEREST CHARGE of $2.00. The variable APR will vary with the market based on the Prime Rate. Deferred offer good 4/2-4/6/2014. See Credit Card Agreement for additional details. ➤ REG. PRICES ARE OFFERING PRICES, AND SAVINGS MAY NOT BE BASED ON ACTUAL SALES. SALE PRICES IN EFFECT THROUGH 4/6/14.
